ECWR Concludes the 1st Course of

A series of Web Lectures

(Cairo, 10th of October, 2019) The Egyptian Center for Women's Rights (ECWR) broadcasted the seventh and final web lecture of the first online training course. The online training courses aim at building the capacity of NGOs and youth activists through providing them with the practical experience.

The seventh episode deals with one of the most important phases of the administrative process, "evaluation" as the cornerstone of any business or institution, whether commercial or developmental.

This episode includes a detailed explanation of the definition and objectives of the evaluation, what we evaluate, how and why, the challenges facing the evaluation process, the evaluation's timing and its importance, the different methods of evaluation.

The web lecture broadcasts on the YouTube channel of Ms. Nehad Abolkomsan, chairwoman of ECWR via the below link:

ECWR announces launching of the second online training course titled "Local Councils and Participation in Decision Making Process" within days.

The online training course is a part of ECWR's project "Enhancing Women's Capacities for Effective Participation in Local Councils in Egypt" which is implemented in a partnership with the United Nation Democracy Fund (UNDEF)

The project aims to enhance the capacities of female local council candidates and on strengthening their engagement with local non-governmental organizations in eight governorates in Egypt.
